LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

TRAVELLING SOLDIERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—Your correspondent Mr. Charles E. Ley must have written without first-hand knowledge when he states, speaking on behalf of the Royal Dublin Society, "Central Club, that we have never turned any soldier or sailor away." During the past three weeks the official and public press have been in a state of confusion over this question, having been with scores of men between the hours of 9 and 10.30 p.m., who stated that they could not get admission to the Club. The Committee were on several nights the statements of the men by ringing the Club up on the telephone. We were informed that an admission was not given to any of them, and that this casts any reflection on the Club whatever. The Committee were doing their best and doing it with the utmost of the men have not been fully met.

I consider that Mr. Dennis, in his first letter to the Press gave an accurate and unexaggerated account of the existing difficulties at the time. I have been, and am still, an admirer of the good work which the Royal Dublin Society is doing, and give the best of our support to them. Our agencies large numbers of men to the Club for beds every day, and shall continue to do so. We have done our best to accommodate them and have always secured the greatest kindness and courtesy from its responsible officials.

To your readers may be satisfied that there is urgent need for more ample hotel provision being made in the city for our returning war-wives and many others who have been compelled to leave their homes in Ireland to find a new home in Abbey street. I wish to thank the friends who have already responded to my Committee's appeal for funds, and assure them that the contributions will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Yours, etc., HENRY O'CONNOR.

Y.M.C.A., 43 Upper Sackville street, Dublin, January 4th, 1919.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

Sir,—I should be glad if you would kindly allow me to supplement the letter from Mr. Dennis, in your issue of January 4th, in regard to the Royal Dublin Society.

Mr. Dennis' statement is correct in so far as it goes, but I have to add that the Royal Dublin Society has management of post Horns Show, I suppose there is nothing left for the Royal Dublin Society to do, but to make a sort of idea that I have heard gentlemen on the other side of the Channel (many of them) have had a sort of idea that the Royal Dublin Society has not done its duty in this matter.

LEVINSTEIN, LTD.

AMALGAMATION WITH

BRITISH DYES.

THE SCHEME APPROVED.

WORK OF THE NEW

GREAT INCREASE IN PRODUCTION OF DYES.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of Levinstein, Ltd., was held on Monday, June 23, Lord Armagh presiding.

The Chairman said:—

The amalgamation between British Dyes, Limited, and our own Company is now practically an accomplished fact.

On November 29 circulars were sent out to the ordinary shareholders asking them to sign a form of assent and authority to my and my colleagues, Sir H. D. McGowan, K.B.E., and Dr. Herbert Levinstein, agreeing to the proposed exchange of our ordinary shares in Levinstein, Limited, for fully paid shares in the new company to be called the British Dyestuff Corporation, Limited, and enabling us on your behalf to exercise this transfer as soon as the new company comes into existence.

A similar circular was sent out on the same date to the ordinary shareholders of British Dyes, Limited.

As regards our own preference shareholders, the new company is willing either to buy their holding for cash or to exchange for each £10 preference share ten 7 per cent. non-cumulative 1½ preference shares in the British Dyestuff Corporation, Limited.

All class of shareholders in both companies were asked to sign their forms of assent and to return them to us not later than December 15.

I am glad to be able to inform you that in overwhelming majority of the holders of ordinary and preference shares in our Company and of the ordinary shareholders in British Dyes, Ltd., have returned their assents. Only an insignificant minority have failed to return their forms. I would ask these few shareholders kindly to lose no further time in filling up and returning them to me as the offer to exchange is still open, but cannot be kept open indefinitely.

It is gratifying to me to know that you have approved of our scheme and that the country will at last have the advantage of presenting a more united front in the great commercial struggle with the German dye industry which is about to begin. Make no mistake about it, the future success of the textile trades of this country depends largely on the successful outcome of this struggle.

GERMANS AND THE DYE SUPPLY.

Prior to the war the Germans had acquired a control over the textile trades of all countries in the world. It was one of their most potent forms of peaceful penetration, the political importance of which in India, China, Russia, Persia, and the Near East has never received proper recognition.

In our own country the danger of being dependent upon Germany for a supply of dyestuffs is now clear to everybody, but prior to the war this was not the case. This lack of recognition is, in my opinion, chiefly due to the fact that the German plants had not completed. A process was going on in Germany in which a very short space of time it was proposed to absorb all dangerous rivals in the dye industry, crushing out in the process, they could, all those who, like ourselves, recognised the German menace and had the courage to stand out against it. The moment that this scheme was completed, and it was very near completion, consumers in this country would have realised their danger and this would have been ready to fight against it, but it would have been too late to take effective measures to protect themselves.

The Germans are, we know, specious and plausible while acquiring domination, but entirely arbitrary and unscrupulous when they are in the ascendancy.

An independent aniline dye industry is therefore vital to the national security.

From national reasons you will regret as much as I do the great and unnecessary delay which has restricted, to an extent of which the people are not aware, the developments of the industry in this country.

The country in general and the textile trades in particular owe a great debt to the President of the Board of Trade and to the Dyes Commissioner for their initiative in this matter and for the very valuable assistance which they have consistently given to the industry.

TASK OF THE NEW COMPANY.

It is a matter of regret to me that with the formation of the British Dyestuff Corporation I propose to sever my active connection with the aniline dye industry. After twenty-three years as chairman of your Company I feel entitled to enjoy a little more leisure. I am glad to think that under my chairmanship the Company has achieved such a great position both in the industrial and scientific world. Our successor, the British Dyestuff Corporation, have a most important task before them, in which I heartily hope and believe they will have every success.

Very considerable extensions are necessary before the Company can complete the production programme which has been mapped out. Adequate funds will no doubt be forthcoming, and I would like to emphasise, as I did last year, and, I believe, in the previous year, that adequate financial support is the one thing essential to our carrying out the desire of the Government and rendering this country in dependent of German dyestuffs. On the scientific side success is certain.

PLENTY OF CHEMICAL TALENT.

There is a far greater amount of chemical talent in the country than is generally realised. A great deal of it was never previously enlisted in the public service, but during the war purely academic chemists have rendered considerable service to the State in investigating new substances and devising new processes for offensive and defensive warfare. This has brought many university professors into the first time in touch with manufacturing requirements. Their experience will, I trust, be of advantage both to pure science and also to industry, particularly to our industry, which is based on science and lives by scientific research.

The old academic tradition that research work which would lead to immediate practical results was beneath the dignity of science is dying out. Nobody deserves universities to neglect research on subjects of abstract and purely theoretical interest, but nobody rejoices more than the leaders of our industry at the closer feeling of unity which has been established between the leaders of pure science and the leaders in the application of science to industry. Brilliant men who formerly stood apart are now anxious to help, and we who know how to use their assistance welcome them most cordially, and require their aid. For one will never believe that we in this country, roused at last to battle in the domain of science, will prove unequal to our task.

We have not spent a penny in the erection of plant for the manufacture of substances which we could buy from outside sources. If we have made ourselves independent in the supply of intermediate products it was because there was nobody else in this country who was either able or willing to supply us.
